Introductory

In offering to the Members of the Barnum Family the following Genealogical Record, the Compilers consider it necessary to give a brief explanation of the very unusual form in which the matter is presented, and also to point out the advantages which this method possesses.

The scheme is entirely original with the Compilers, whose chief aim has been to design such a method of tabulation as would display in the clearest and most satisfactory manner the various ramifications of each distinct family, and at the same time show their connection with our common ancestor.

The period embraced in this Record represents the eight generations which have descended from Thomas Barnum of Fairfield. The Record opens with a synopsis consisting of three pages, on which are presented the first four generations.

In the first column on each of these pages stands the name of Thomas, and this ranks as the first American Generation. The second and third columns present the names of the sons and grandsons of Thomas, and the fourth column gives the names of his great grandsons.

Thus in one synopsis all the various members of the first four generations are shown in a clear and easily understood manner.

This same system runs through the whole Record, each page of which presents four generations, viz., the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth. The three pages comprised in the Synopsis are intended to be used as Key pages to all the rest, for next to the name of each great grandson of Thomas is the number of the page in the Record which gives the family of that particular individual. It will be noted that only the names of the male descendants are given, as the Record deals only with Barnums.

There is a grand opportunity now for one of our kinsmen to come forward and defray the publication of a volume of Barnum Biography. This should contain interesting accounts of all our Ancestors, the names of the daughters and their marriages, portraits, views of old homesteads, etc., etc.

The Compilers of this Record have an immense number of letters, portraits, newspaper clippings, etc., which they would readily devote to this purpose.

Surely in a family which can trace its line back 500 years, which can show 100 of its members in the Revolution, and over 200 in the Civil War, there ought to be found one with sufficient pride and zeal to assume the publication of such a work.

Unfortunately, we have not been able so far to discover the names of any of the sons of John, the fourth son of Thomas. Neither have we ascertained all the sons of Ebenezer. The destruction of the Town Records, when the British troops burned Danbury, together with the absence of Vital Statistics from 1800 to 1840, have proved an irreparable loss to us.

Trusting that what we have succeeded in accomplishing will meet the appreciation of our many kinsmen throughout the United States and Canada,

We remain with much esteem,

EBEN LEWIS BARNUM,
Dodge,
Worcester County, Mass.

THE BARNHAM ARMS.

Although the exact relationship of our Founder, Thomas 1st, with his family in England has not as yet been clearly ascertained, nevertheless there is no doubt whatsoever about his connection, and ours through him, with the old English Stock.

According to Burke's volume on the "Extinct and Dormant Peerages of Great Britain," two distinct patents of Knighthood were granted by the Crown, to the Barnham Family. Both of these have lapsed in default of male heirs in the line of primogeniture.

The older patent is that conferred upon Sir Walter Barnham, who, in 1377, was Chief Baron of the Exchequer under King Richard II.

The second patent which was bestowed upon Sir Martin Barnham July 23, 1603, descended for five generations, and lapsed with Sir Robert Barnham, who died in 1728, leaving only one daughter, Philadelphia.

The Arms s. a. (Black) are as follows:

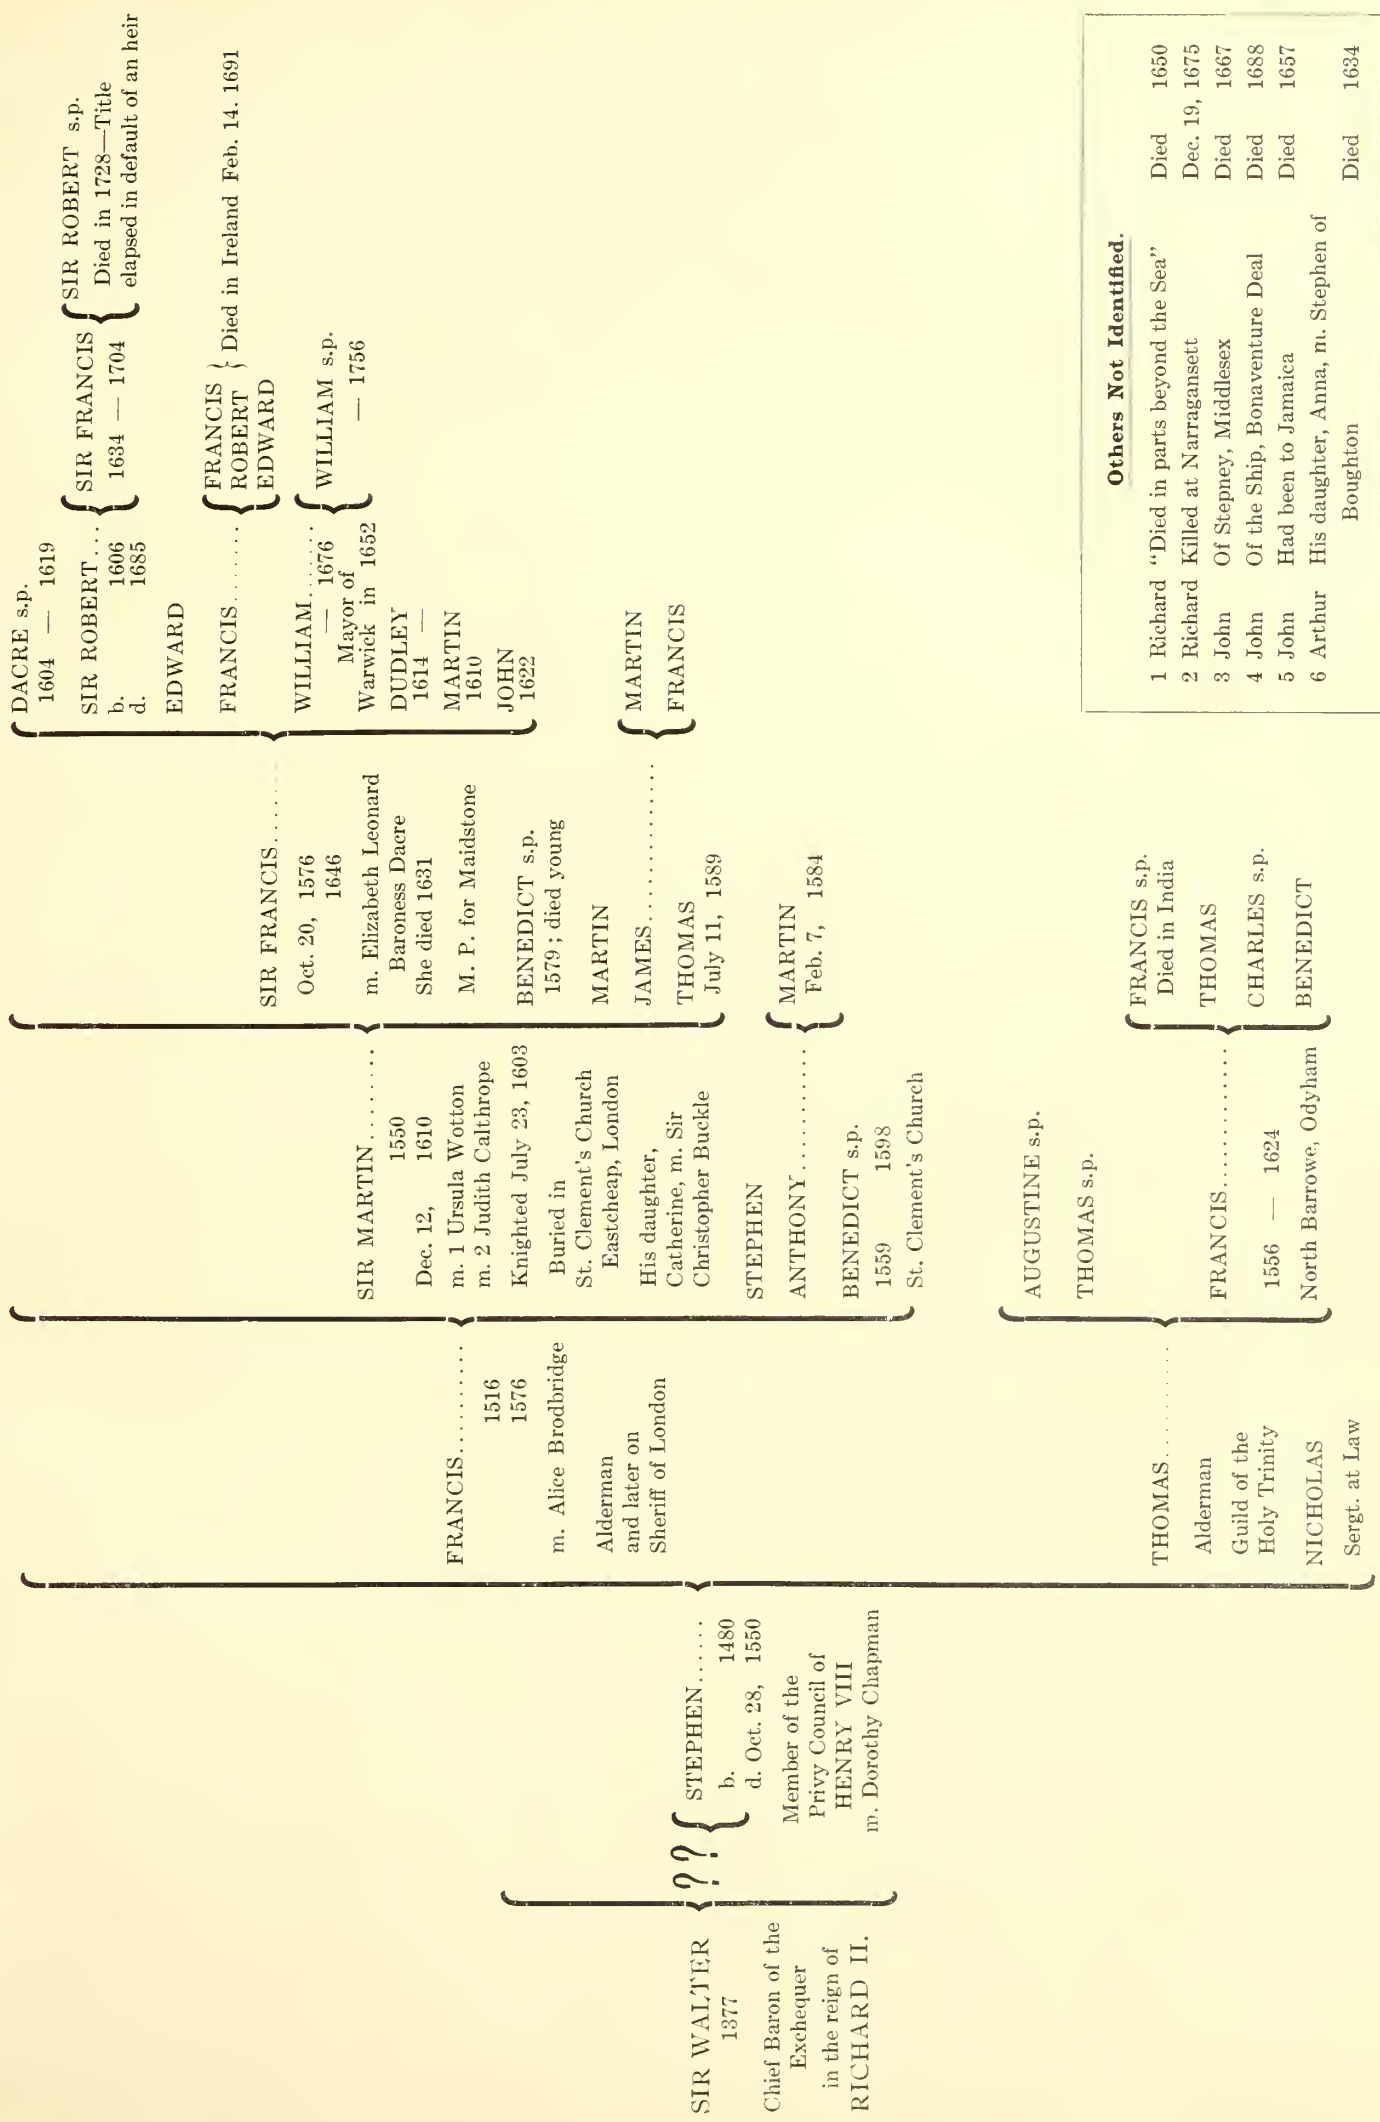

A cross engrailed between four crescents argent (white), is for the male line of Barnhams.

The female branch is the Brobridge Arms represented by a Pheon on azure (blue).

The Crest—A dragon's head argent.

The Motto—Per Crucem ad Lumen.

Through the Cross to the Light.
